

THE PRESIDENT SOUNDS WARNING

President Roosevelt Sends a Special Message.

RAINY RIVER DAM MEASURE

Vetoed by Chief Executive, Who Says There Are Many Bills Pending Which Propose to Give Away Valuable Stream Rights.

Washington, April 14.—In a special message vetoing a dam bill, President Roosevelt warned congress that there are pending in this session bills which propose to give away without price stream rights capable of developing 1,300,000 horsepower whose production would cost annually 25,000,000 tons of coal; urged in vigorous terms the establishment of a policy such as the filibustering minority in the house demands, which would safeguard the granting of bridge and dam privileges and require the grantees to pay for them; and definitely announced a future policy on his part with regard to prompt utilization of construction privileges by refusing his signature to a bill giving an additional three years to the Rainy River Improvement company, within which to build a dam in the Rainy river.

"I do not believe," said the president, "that natural resources should be granted and held in an undeveloped condition either for speculative or other reasons. So far as I am aware there are no assurances that the grantees (in this case) are in any better condition promptly and properly to utilize this opportunity than they were at the time of the original act (granting the privilege) ten years ago."

The president outlined the following policy, which he favors:

Advocates a Definite Policy.

"In place of the present haphazard policy of permanently alienating valuable public property we should substitute a definite policy along the following lines:

"First—There should be a limited or carefully guarded grant in the nature of an option or opportunity afforded within reasonable time for development of plans and for execution of the project.

"Second—Such a grant or concession should be accompanied in the act making the grant by a provision expressly making it the duty of the designated official to annul the grant if the work is not begun or plans are not carried out in accordance with the authority granted.

"Third—It should also be the duty of some designated official to see to it that in approving the plans the maximum development of the navigation and power is assured, or at least in making the plans these may not be so developed as ultimately to interfere with the better utilization of the water or complete development of the power.

"Fourth—There should be a license fee or charge which, though small or nominal at the outset, can in the future be adjusted so as to secure a control in the interest of the public.

"Fifth—Provision should be made for the termination of the grant or privilege at a definite time, leaving to future generations the power or authority to renew or extend the concession in accordance with the conditions which may prevail at that time."

COMPROMISE MEASURE.

To Meet Conflicts Between Federal Courts and State Authorities.

Washington, April 14.—To meet conflicts between federal courts and state authorities, such as have arisen during the past year in Minnesota, North Carolina, Alabama and other states, the senate committee on judiciary reported a bill directing the method of procedure in cases where an effort is made in the federal courts to enjoin state officials from enforcing state laws. The bill is a compromise between measures introduced by Senators Overman, Bacon and the late Senator Bryan of Florida, and was reported by Mr. Overman. It has created much attention at the hands of the committee and is intended not only to lessen the frequency of injunctions in such cases, but to modify and soften the process when it is resorted to. It prohibits any one federal judge from granting such an injunction and requires that all applications for such orders shall be heard by at least three federal judges, two of whom shall be circuit judges, while the third may be either a circuit or a district judge. It also requires at least five days' notice to the state authorities and grants appeal to the supreme court of the United States.

ALDRICH FINANCIAL BILL.

Handled Without Gloves by Business Men.

Washington, April 14.—The Aldrich financial bill, as passed by the senate, was handled without gloves by speakers before the house committee on banking and currency, which is considering the measure. With the exception of Charles C. Glover, president of the Riggs National bank of this city, none of those who spoke favored the passage at this time of an emergency measure. The sentiment was almost unanimous that if a permanent financial bill cannot become a law now, no attempt should be made to amend the present laws.

The speakers who followed Mr. Glover, representing interests in Minneapolis, St. Paul, Boston, New York, Philadelphia and Richmond, Va., took issue with his statement that financial conditions have not improved and said they saw no signs of an impending panic. One of the sections most freely criticised was the La Follette amendment providing that no national banking association shall invest any part of its funds or deposits in the stocks or other securities of any corporation or association, any of the officers or directors of which are officers or directors of such banking association. The claim was made that this would drive the most desirable men of a community out of the directorate of a bank.

An asset currency bill was favored by many of the speakers and the appointment of a commission to investigate the whole subject and report to congress was generally favored.

UNLOOKED FOR PROGRESS

Made in the House on the Naval Appropriation Bill.

Washington, April 14.—Unlooked for progress was made by the house in the consideration of the naval appropriation bill. When it was laid aside for the day it had been one-half disposed of and the advocates of the four battleships proposition were aligning themselves in preparation for the fight on that subject which probably will soon occur. The hopes of the officers of the navy and marine corps for an increase in pay were dashed to the ground when on a point of order by Mr. Madden of Illinois, there was stricken from the bill the provision for such increase. On a similar point by Mr. Mudd of Maryland an amendment by Mr. Bartholdt of Missouri prohibiting naval or marine bands accepting private employment in competition with civilian musicians was lost.

AGAINST PAPER TRUST.

No Evidence to Justify Legal Proceedings Obtained.

Washington, April 14.—The attorney general has sent to Speaker Cannon a letter in reply to the house resolution asking what steps have been taken by the government to investigate the alleged combination of wood pulp or print paper manufacturers. The attorney general says an investigation is in progress, but no evidence has yet been obtained to justify legal proceedings. He says that when the investigation and the report thereon is completed he will submit them without delay if he can do so without affecting the interests of justice, but that if the investigation should lead to civil or criminal proceedings it may continue expedient to temporarily withhold from the public the evidence and information.

CROWDED WITH VISITORS.

San Diego Ready to Welcome Battleship Fleet.

San Diego, Cal., April 14.—Fete days for the American battleship fleet will begin when the battleships of the navy's most notable cruise cast anchor in the waters of the Pacific off Coronado Beach, two miles from San Diego as the crow flies. San Diego is crowded with visitors and sightseers and never before in the history of the city has there been such an elaborate decoration of streets and buildings. Triumphant arches have been erected at many of the street intersections and immense signs that burn the hospitable word "welcome" are among the many features of the elaborate scheme of decoration.

Governor J. N. Gillette of California, accompanied by his staff and a distinguished party of guests, has arrived here. Governor Gillette arose from a sick bed in San Francisco to come here and is still quite ill. If well enough he will go out to the Connecticut to pay his respects to Admiral Charles M. Thomas, the senior officer in command. Admiral Thomas will return the governor's visit at the Hotel Del Coronado.

TO ASSIST SUFFERERS

Movement Organized for Aid of Fire Victims.

REVISED LIST OF LOSSES

Shows That Property Valued at Nearly Six Million Dollars Was Destroyed—No Further Deaths Have Been Reported.

Boston, April 14.—From the embers of the conflagration in Chelsea there has arisen a well-organized movement for aid and relief of the 10,000 homeless, a counting of the cost by insurance companies, whose representatives placed their losses at $3,500,000, and a determination by the city authorities to rebuild the 350 acres swept by the flames where stood, before the fire, property valued at nearly $6,000,000.

No further deaths have been reported and of the injured persons taken to the various hospitals only two are believed to be in a critical condition. The three bodies which were taken to the morgue in Boston remain unidentified.

Revised figures indicate that the losses total $5,575,000, being divided according to the various classes of property destroyed, as follows:

Churches and schools, $525,000; public buildings, $475,000; factories, business blocks and contents, $825,000; dwelling houses, $3,750,000.

The insurance of $3,500,000 is divided among about eighty companies.

There was comparatively little suffering reported among the fire victims. So prompt and efficient was the relief work that practically no one was without shelter at night.

The relief has been taken up by those who handled the Massachusetts fund for the San Francisco sufferers.

Mayor Issues an Appeal.

Mayor Beck issued an appeal to the country, but after a conference with Acting Governor Eben S. Draper, the appeal was amended so as to include only the state. Announcement was made that $15,000 had been raised by subscription in Boston before noon. In addition the city of Chelsea appropriated $10,000 and a resolution calling for $100,000 from the state was introduced in the house of representatives. Many nearby cities announced the starting of subscription papers and the city governments of others will hold special meetings to take action on the matter. A message received from President Roosevelt expressed sympathy and volunteered the services of the army and navy.

In the meantime the local organizations, such as the associated charities and the Salvation Army, were perfecting their work and they professed entire ability to find temporary quarters for all the homeless.

The burned district was closely patrolled by the state militia, the work of the guard, however, consisted mostly in keeping people from venturing too near the standing walls. There was very little property remaining to be guarded, so thoroughly had the area been swept by the flames. In fact, the underwriters who viewed the ruins saw no prospect of salvage of any description. One street, Broadway, was cleared and opened to the general public and as it led straight through the heart of the ruins, a steady stream of people moved through it all day. A few of the ruins smoked lazily during the day and two more oil tanks caught fire and burned themselves out. Other than these, there was little left for the fire and all the visiting apparatus was sent home.

STREAMS ARE SWOLLEN.

Thousands of Acres of Bottom Land Inundated.

Muskogee, Okla., April 14.—Swollen streams are threatening the railroad and wagon bridges in Eastern Oklahoma and thousands of acres of bottom land are inundated. The Canadian, Arkansas and Verdigris rivers are above their banks and at this point the Arkansas river has reached the highest stage since 1904.

Several miles of the St. Louis and San Francisco railroad near Melvin are covered by water and traffic has been suspended.

Passengers were carried on handcars over a stretch of track which is several feet under water. Fear is expressed for the Missouri, Kansas and Texas bridge across the Canadian.

Highwaymen Kill Conductor.

Birmingham, Ala., April 14.—Highwaymen, supposed to be negroes, derailed a South Bessemer electric car at the Woodward crossing, and when the motorman and conductor went forward to investigate they were fired upon from behind a pile of logs. Conductor Woods was killed instantly. The men escaped and a sheriff's posse with dogs has taken up the chase.

Democratic State Convention in New York.

New York, April 14.—The Democratic state convention, which will be held here, promises to be as interesting in its deliberations as in its conclusions. A two-days' session is planned and unless all signs fail the time allotted will be required for the business in hand.

First and foremost, there will be a determined fight in the interests of the candidacy of William Jennings Bryan. The Bryan men will in all probability lose and an uninstructed delegation will be sent to the national convention at Denver.

The defeat of the Bryan men, who will be in a minority, is quite likely to be accomplished in the committee on resolutions. The committee, controlled by Tammany Leader Charles F. Murphy and Chairman W. J. Connors, is expected to squelch anything proposed in the way of a minority report. The report of the majority will probably criticize the Republican administration and invite a Democratic victory in November, but will avoid a mention of presidential candidates and resolve that an uninstructed delegation be sent to the national convention. Any subsequent attempt to get the name of Mr. Bryan before the convention will be set upon.

Anticipating such action, Augustus Thomas, the president, and others of the Bryan Democratic Progressive league issued a statement demanding the endorsement of Mr. Bryan. Mr. Thomas has secured the proxy of an up-state delegate and will make a fight on the floor of the convention to have the league statement adopted as resolutions.

VICTORY FOR CITY.

Sioux Falls Wins Long Legal Fight for Valuable Property.

Sioux Falls, S. D., April 14.—After litigation lasting for four years Sioux Falls has won a sweeping victory as a result of a decision by Federal Judge Carland in the case of Sioux Falls vs. the South Dakota Water company. Property worth $500,000 is involved. The water company claimed perpetual rights under a franchise entered into between it and the city on April 9, 1884, and which was limited to a period of twenty years.

Judge Carland held in substance that the old water company had no present rights under the twenty-year franchise; that its rights for occupying the streets with its mains and furnishing water to the people of Sioux Falls existed only during the twenty years covered by the lease.

Cashier Attempts Suicide.

Madison, Wis., April 14.—Confronted with the charge of having embezzled over $8,000 of the funds of the Citizens' State bank of the village of Belleville, Edwin C. Story, cashier of the bank, attempted to commit suicide by taking poison. He was discovered before the poison had much chance to take effect and physicians believe he will recover. The bank is in charge of State Banking Commissioner M. C. Bergh.

MYSTERIOUS TRAGEDY

Enacted in Tenderloin District of New York City.

WOMAN AND A MAN DEAD

Another Man Wounded and Placed Under Arrest in Connection With the Affair—Peculiar Case of Poisoning in Chicago.

New York, April 14.—The tenderloin has produced another tragedy quite as ghoulish and mysterious as others that have made certain sections of this city notorious.

When the police reached the scene Kate Pelter, thirty-eight years old, had been strangled to death by a towel which was bound tightly about the neck; Vito Della Raba, forty-six years old, a clothing cutter, and once a companion of the woman, was dead with his throat cut, while Charles A. Berger, a boilermaker, forty years old, who occupied the flat where the killing was done, was bleeding from wounds in the side made by a bread knife.

Berger will probably live. He told the police that he had discovered Della Raba robbing the flat. That the latter attacked him and then killed himself. He disclaimed knowledge of the woman's death. Berger is under arrest at a hospital.

The Pelter woman came here two years ago from Chicago and was said to be the widow of a tailor of that city. She possessed a considerable amount of jewelry and at one time is said to have been well provided with money.

The police have established that the woman's maiden name was Kratoski and that her family lives in Chicago. Her husband, Samuel Pelter, died in Chicago four years ago from causes not definitely determined. The woman's sister-in-law, Mrs. Annie Kratoski, was similarly strangled to death six months ago.

PUT POISON IN FLOUR.

Nicolozzo Says Girl's Mother Suggested the Crime.

Chicago, April 14.—Francesca Nicolozzo declared that the death of Mary Renda, an eight-year-old girl who died some days ago under suspicious circumstances, was caused by poison which he had placed in the flour at the suggestion of the girl's mother.

No object is known for the crime except that Mrs. Renda was angry with her husband, who desired to move from their present residence, while she desired to remain. She threatened to have revenge unless he consented to abandon his plans, and it is thought by the police that she poisoned her daughter to revenge herself on her husband.

Nicolozzo was a friend of the Renda family and declared that the woman asked him to buy the poison, and after he had done so requested him to mix it with the flour. When his confession was read to the woman in the presence of Nicolozzo, she made a vicious attack upon him and it required the full strength of two police officers to drag her away.

Mrs. Renda charged Nicolozzo with the crime and declared that she believed it was his intention to poison herself and her husband for the purpose of securing a sum of money that they had saved and a portion of which she carried about with her. Nicolozzo, according to Mrs. Renda, was not at the breakfast table the morning the poisoned bread was eaten, but returned, she believed, to learn what were the effects of the poison. Nicolozzo by his own confession had been in trouble with the police of Rumford, Me., where he was arrested for the murder of Francisco Vatalero, but was acquitted of the charge. He also said he had fled from Gorham, N. H., last December, after the sudden death of the owner of a boarding house where he had been living.

JOHNSON IN KENTUCKY.

Minnesota's Governor Warmly Welcomed by Democrats at Louisville.

Louisville, Ky., April 14.—Governor Johnson of Minnesota was given his first formal introduction to the Democrats of Kentucky at the banquet of the Jefferson club, where he delivered the principal address. The welcome accorded him was an enthusiastic one, 500 diners sitting down at tables in the Seelbach hotel roof garden, while the remainder of the garden was filled with auditors. By the time the speaking began a number of Kentucky Democratic leaders were present, although pronounced political flavor was mitigated somewhat by the presence of Governor Willson, Kentucky's Republican executive, and a party of friends. Governor Willson delivered the address of welcome and introduced his fellow executive to those present.

Governor Johnson's speech, while rather brief, touched upon Democratic principles and development of the Jeffersonian doctrines by present day needs.

After the banquet Governor Johnson and party left in a special train for Chicago, en route to St. Paul.

JEFFERSON'S BIRTHDAY.

Prominent Democrats Celebrate Its Anniversary in New York.

New York, April 14.—Democrats prominent in the state and nation to the number of 400 gathered at the Hotel Knickerbocker where the 165th anniversary of the birth of Thomas Jefferson was celebrated at a dinner by the National Democratic club. Illness prevented the attendance of two of the promised speakers, Senator Robert L. Taylor of Tennessee and Edward M. Shepard.

Judge Warren W. Foster of the court of general sessions presided and the principal speakers were United States Senator Owen of Oklahoma, United States Senator Simmons of North Carolina and President Woodrow Wilson of Princeton university.

Another Man Wounded and Placed Under Arrest in Connection With the Affair—Peculiar Case of Poisoning in Chicago.

New York, April 14.—The tenderloin has produced another tragedy quite as ghoulish and mysterious as others that have made certain sections of this city notorious.

When the police reached the scene Kate Pelter, thirty-eight years old, had been strangled to death by a towel which was bound tightly about the neck; Vito Della Raba, forty-six years old, a clothing cutter, and once a companion of the woman, was dead with his throat cut, while Charles A. Berger, a boilermaker, forty years old, who occupied the flat where the killing was done, was bleeding from wounds in the side made by a bread knife.

Berger will probably live. He told the police that he had discovered Della Raba robbing the flat. That the latter attacked him and then killed himself. He disclaimed knowledge of the woman's death. Berger is under arrest at a hospital.

The Pelter woman came here two years ago from Chicago and was said to be the widow of a tailor of that city. She possessed a considerable amount of jewelry and at one time is said to have been well provided with money.

The police have established that the woman's maiden name was Kratoski and that her family lives in Chicago. Her husband, Samuel Pelter, died in Chicago four years ago from causes not definitely determined. The woman's sister-in-law, Mrs. Annie Kratoski, was similarly strangled to death six months ago.

PUT POISON IN FLOUR.

Nicolozzo Says Girl's Mother Suggested the Crime.

Chicago, April 14.—Francesca Nicolozzo declared that the death of Mary Renda, an eight-year-old girl who died some days ago under suspicious circumstances, was caused by poison which he had placed in the flour at the suggestion of the girl's mother.

No object is known for the crime except that Mrs. Renda was angry with her husband, who desired to move from their present residence, while she desired to remain. She threatened to have revenge unless he consented to abandon his plans, and it is thought by the police that she poisoned her daughter to revenge herself on her husband.

Nicolozzo was a friend of the Renda family and declared that the woman asked him to buy the poison, and after he had done so requested him to mix it with the flour. When his confession was read to the woman in the presence of Nicolozzo, she made a vicious attack upon him and it required the full strength of two police officers to drag her away.

Mrs. Renda charged Nicolozzo with the crime and declared that she believed it was his intention to poison herself and her husband for the purpose of securing a sum of money that they had saved and a portion of which she carried about with her. Nicolozzo, according to Mrs. Renda, was not at the breakfast table the morning the poisoned bread was eaten, but returned, she believed, to learn what were the effects of the poison. Nicolozzo by his own confession had been in trouble with the police of Rumford, Me., where he was arrested for the murder of Francisco Vatalero, but was acquitted of the charge. He also said he had fled from Gorham, N. H., last December, after the sudden death of the owner of a boarding house where he had been living.

JOHNSON IN KENTUCKY.

Minnesota's Governor Warmly Welcomed by Democrats at Louisville.

Louisville, Ky., April 14.—Governor Johnson of Minnesota was given his first formal introduction to the Democrats of Kentucky at the banquet of the Jefferson club, where he delivered the principal address. The welcome accorded him was an enthusiastic one, 500 diners sitting down at tables in the Seelbach hotel roof garden, while the remainder of the garden was filled with auditors. By the time the speaking began a number of Kentucky Democratic leaders were present, although pronounced political flavor was mitigated somewhat by the presence of Governor Willson, Kentucky's Republican executive, and a party of friends. Governor Willson delivered the address of welcome and introduced his fellow executive to those present.

Governor Johnson's speech, while rather brief, touched upon Democratic principles and development of the Jeffersonian doctrines by present day needs.

After the banquet Governor Johnson and party left in a special train for Chicago, en route to St. Paul.

JEFFERSON'S BIRTHDAY.

Prominent Democrats Celebrate Its Anniversary in New York.

New York, April 14.—Democrats prominent in the state and nation to the number of 400 gathered at the Hotel Knickerbocker where the 165th anniversary of the birth of Thomas Jefferson was celebrated at a dinner by the National Democratic club. Illness prevented the attendance of two of the promised speakers, Senator Robert L. Taylor of Tennessee and Edward M. Shepard.

Judge Warren W. Foster of the court of general sessions presided and the principal speakers were United States Senator Owen of Oklahoma, United States Senator Simmons of North Carolina and President Woodrow Wilson of Princeton university.

GOTCH THE WRESTLER.

How the World's Champion Took Up Wrestling as a Profession.

Just how Frank Gotch of Humboldt, Ia., who recently won through default the wrestling championship of the world from George Hackenschmidt, the "Russian Lion," came to take up wrestling in a professional way is told as follows in his own language:

"I butted by mere chance, so to speak, into the business, and the occasion of my debut was anything but auspicious. It took place about eight years ago in the little town of Livermore, Ia., where the Modern Woodmen were holding a picnic. There were all sorts of athletic games, and one of the men entered against me in the shot put and other similar events was a well built chap whom the crowd only knew as Dan. Nobody knew just where he hailed from.

"He had the reputation of being a fast runner, but I managed to put it all over him, although I was not more than a kid at the time. I beat him in the fifty yard run and was also victorious at throwing the hammer. The defeats made Dan a bit angry, and he proposed all sorts of things to get even. One was a wrestling match. Although I did not know the first thing about the game, I consented more because I was young, ambitious and prided myself on my strength than anything else.

"Some one furnished me with a pair of old trunks, and when I asked Dan where we would wrestle he said rather sneeringly, 'Right in the middle of the street, in the heart of the town, my lad.' And he said it loud enough so that many of my friends and admirers should hear it.

"I protested that wrestling on the street on the stones was not the kind of a match I had expected to engage in. I proposed a hall, but Dan would not hear of it.

"It's got to be in the middle of the street or nowhere at all,' he replied. 'You have beaten me fairly and squarely at running and throwing the hammer and a few other things, and I would like to get even. Come, now, be a man and accept. You are strong and hearty and ought not to kick about the stones so long as I am satisfied.'

"My friends cheered me when I yielded, but I was shivering in my skin, thinking that the first time he should upset me I would break my skull against the hard pavement. But I was in for it and had to make the best of it. Well, we went at it, and went at it good. Head spins and all sorts of things that you see in a big hall on a nice, velvety mat were indulged in, and the crowd nearly went wild with excitement. Just imagine what shape we were in when the bout ended, and it lasted just one hour and forty-five minutes. I was thrown, and thrown good. My back, shins and face were scratched and bruised, and there were several bumps on the back of my head where I came in contact with the hard pavement. And Dan was used up nearly as much as myself and bleeding from the nose.

"After the bout he took me by the hand and shook it warmly. 'You're the gamest kid I have ever met, and you ain't a bad wrestler. But,' he continued smilingly, 'you ain't in my class.' We were both very much to the bad, so I could not muster up enough bad blood to get a temper. So I let the salty go by the board. I told him my name and asked him who he was. He said, 'Come and see me off, and I will tell you who I am.' I accompanied him to the train, and just as the cars pulled out he handed me a card which read, 'Dan McLeod, champion catch-as-catch-can wrestler of the world.'

"I was dumfounded over this information and, despite my pains and aches, gathered myself together and felt rather important. Champion, indeed, I thought. I lasted an hour and forty-five minutes on bare stones with him, and I might be able to beat him on a nice mat. So I reflected, Why shouldn't I become a wrestler myself? And I did, and I have been at it ever since that time."

"Dr. Shrupe seems to be quite wealthy. Did he make all his money from his practice?"

"Not all of it. He's the principal owner of a very large and productive oil well."

"Ah! So he makes money from the tick and well too."

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven Catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials. Address: F. J. CLASS IN BALLOONING

National Guardsmen Enter the Field of Aeronautics.

AERO CLUB WILL HELP THEM

First Company, Signal Corps of New York State Organization, to Take Up Complete Course of Study in Aeronautical Science—Leo Stevens to Give First Practical Lesson.

Members of the First company, signal corps, N. G. N. Y., are preparing to add balloons to their equipment and utilize aeronautical science to the fullest. To this end an aeronautic corps, commanded by Major Oscar Erlandsen and consisting of twenty-five men, has been organized. A complete course of study of aeronautic science is to be entered upon, ascensions are to be made, and within a few weeks the militiamen expect to take up the construction of several balloons for practical use.

In determining to enter the field of aerial navigation the men of the First company have had the hearty co-operation of prominent members of the Aero Club of America. In adopting this course, too, they have attained the honor of being the first national guard organization of any state to utilize practical aeronautics, says the New York Herald. Major Erlandsen, who has been the guiding genius in this plan, is widely known as a civil engineer. He recently said:

"Our aeronautic corps intends to take up ballooning at once. We realize that we must follow rather than invent, and because of that fact we plan to make a practical study of the subject of aeronautics and fit ourselves to make the greatest possible use of balloons and dirigibles. On April 30 next the course will open with a lecture, accompanied by the use of lantern slides. Afterward Leo Stevens will give members of the class their first practical lesson. A complete miniature spherical balloon will be used, as will a large balloon with a capacity of 35,000 cubic feet of gas. The men, under Mr. Stevens' direction, will prepare the big gas bag for an ascension, though the balloon will not be inflated.

"During the subsequent weeks the men will construct a small pilot balloon having a diameter of probably twelve feet. Though this cannot be used to carry passengers, it can be utilized in carrying skyward the antennae of a wireless telegraph apparatus, in operating cameras and in sending up Ardis lights for practice in signaling at night. After that we shall construct a large balloon having a capacity of at least 35,000 cubic feet of gas. If the company participates in the maneuvers up state during June we shall take a balloon up there with us, though it probably will have to be borrowed.

"Members of the Aero Club of America have aided us in every way. It is probable that members of our aeronautic corps will make ascensions with them within a few weeks, as several flights are contemplated at Pittsfield, Mass., and other points."

In the tower of the Seventy-first regiment armory, where the First company maintains quarters, the members have constructed their own wireless telegraph apparatus. With their heliographs, signal flags and other devices they maintain constant communication with the Brooklyn signal corps, the New Jersey corps and the regular army corps at Fort Wood.

OBJECT LESSON FOR FARMERS

Secretary Wilson's Plan For Showing How to Make Denatured Alcohol.

Secretary Wilson has decided to give the farmers of the country a practical demonstration of how to make denatured alcohol.

He will establish at Washington, in one of the buildings of the department of agriculture, a model station, or plant, where farmers and others interested in the subject will be shown how to make alcohol out of the various waste products of the farm, such as decayed fruit, corn, potatoes and the like, which cannot be used for any other purpose.

The farmers have been slow to take up this matter, and Secretary Wilson wants to instruct and encourage them. The management of the corn exposition which is to be held at Omaha next fall wants Secretary Wilson to establish a station there and give demonstrations. The secretary would like to do so, but won't unless congress makes the necessary appropriation.

Jewel Flowers For Earrings.

Those who have been complaining that the trouble with so called art jewelers is that they limit themselves to selection within a range of three or four gems and will not attempt to devise novelties, fearing they may not "catch on," will have to withdraw their charges. Floral earrings have been put upon the market and may be bought to match the colors of different costumes or the flowers on the latest spring hats, says the New York Press. Forgetmenots are made of turquoises, with a pearl or diamond in the center of the flower. Pink rosebuds are cut out of pink coral. Purple pansies and violets are imitated in amethysts. Amber does duty for buttercups. Delightful garden daisy earrings are made of mother-of-pearl, with the tips of the petals tinted pink. A leaf earring is fashioned of emeralds. Dainty little poppies are set with rubies or garnets. Certain women prefer the flower earrings fitted close to the lobes, whereas others still cling to the drop design and have fixed to the hook or screw a couple of slender gold or silver links, from which little jeweled blossoms depend.

AGED WOMAN MURDERED.

Negro Kills Wealthy Recluse in Order to Rob Her.

St. Louis, April 14.—Mrs. Beazlie E. Mullally, aged seventy years, a wealthy recluse, was found dead at her home with her throat cut from ear to ear, and a negro chore boy has confessed that he had murdered the old woman to rob her of the large sum she was supposed to carry.

Mrs. Mullally was a widow and had lived like a hermit for twenty-seven years in her old home on South Fifteenth street, despite the entreaties of her children that she follow them to a better quarter of the city.

A negro, Charles Hinchner, aged twenty-four years, was arrested as soon as it was found that he had worked for Mrs. Mullally Saturday. He confessed that he had killed the woman with a jackknife and secured $47, which he spent for a watch, rings and drink.

Both Held for Trial.

Richmond, Mo., April 14.—The preliminary hearing of Thomas McGonnigle and his sister, Mrs. Mary J. Burnett, charged with the murder of their sister-in-law, Mrs. Maggie McGonnigle, has ended. The defendants were bound over to the circuit court for trial and their bonds fixed at $5,000 each. Mrs. Maggie McGonnigle was murdered and her home set afire on Feb. 10.

Injunction Dissolved.

San Francisco, April 14.—The injunction restraining Surveyor General Kingsbury from removing certain documents in his possession to Washington, as he had been ordered to do by the federal court of the District of Columbia for use in the trial of Hyde and Benson, charged with land frauds, was dissolved by Judge Sewell on his motion and without argument.

Minister's Body Found.

New York, April 14.—The body of a man found in Hudson river has been identified as that of Rev. Dr. Charles Elmer Allison, pastor of the Day Spring Presbyterian church of Yonkers, who has been missing since January. It is not known in what manner Dr. Allison met his death.

Just imagine what shape we were in when the bout ended, and it lasted just one hour and forty-five minutes. I was thrown, and thrown good. My back, shins and face were scratched and bruised, and there were several bumps on the back of my head where I came in contact with the hard pavement. And Dan was used up nearly as much as myself and bleeding from the nose.

"After the bout he took me by the hand and shook it warmly. 'You're the gamest kid I have ever met, and you ain't a bad wrestler. But,' he continued smilingly, 'you ain't in my class.' We were both very much to the bad, so I could not muster up enough bad blood to get a temper. So I let the sally go by the board. I told him my name and asked him who he was. He said, 'Come and see me off, and I will tell you who I am.' I accompanied him to the train, and just as the cars pulled out he handed me a card which read, 'Dan McLeod, champion catch-as-catch-can wrestler of the world.'

"I was dumfounded over this information and, despite my pains and aches, gathered myself together and felt rather important. Champion, indeed, I thought. I lasted an hour and forty-five minutes on bare stones with him, and I might be able to beat him on a nice mat. So I reflected, Why shouldn't I become a wrestler myself? And I did, and I have been at it ever since that time."

"Dr. Shrupe seems to be quite wealthy. Did he make all his money from his practice?"
"Not all of it. He's the principal owner of a very large and productive oil well."

"Ah! So he makes money from the slick and well too."

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven Catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

CLASS IN BALLOONING

National Guardsmen Enter the Field of Aeronautics.

AERO CLUB WILL HELP THEM

First Company, Signal Corps of New York State Organization, to Take Up Complete Course of Study in Aeronautical Science—Leo Stevens to Give First Practical Lesson.

Members of the First company, signal corps, N. G. N. Y., are preparing to add balloons to their equipment and utilize aeronautical science to the fullest. To this end an aeronautic corps, commanded by Major Oscar Erlandsen and consisting of twenty-five men, has been organized. A complete course of study of aeronautic science is to be entered upon, ascensions are to be made, and within a few weeks the militiamen expect to take up the construction of several balloons for practical use.

In determining to enter the field of aerial navigation the men of the First company have had the hearty co-operation of prominent members of the Aero Club of America. In adopting this course, too, they have attained the honor of being the first national guard organization of any state to utilize practical aeronautics, says the New York Herald. Major Erlandsen, who has been the guiding genius in this plan, is widely known as a civil engineer. He recently said:

"Our aeronautic corps intends to take up ballooning at once. We realize that we must follow rather than invent, and because of that fact we plan to make a practical study of the subject of aeronautics and fit ourselves to make the greatest possible use of balloons and dirigibles. On April 30 next the course will open with a lecture, accompanied by the use of lantern slides. Afterward Leo Stevens will give members of the class their first practical lesson. A complete miniature spherical balloon will be used, as will a large balloon with a capacity of 35,000 cubic feet of gas. The men, under Mr. Stevens' direction, will prepare the big gas bag for an ascension, though the balloon will not be inflated.

"During the subsequent weeks the men will construct a small pilot balloon having a diameter of probably twelve feet. Though this cannot be used to carry passengers, it can be utilized in carrying skyward the antennae of a wireless telegraph apparatus, in operating cameras and in sending up Ardois lights for practice in signaling at night. After that we shall construct a large balloon having a capacity of at least 35,000 cubic feet of gas. If the company participates in the maneuvers up state during June we shall take a balloon up there with us, though it probably will have to be borrowed.

"Members of the Aero Club of America have aided us in every way. It is probable that members of our aeronautic corps will make ascensions with them within a few weeks, as several flights are contemplated at Pittsfield, Mass., and other points."

In the tower of the Seventy-first regiment armory, where the First company maintains quarters, the members have constructed their own wireless telegraph apparatus. With their heliographs, signal flags and other devices they maintain constant communication with the Brooklyn signal corps, the New Jersey corps and the regular army corps at Fort Wood.

OBJECT LESSON FOR FARMERS

Secretary Wilson's Plan For Showing How to Make Denatured Alcohol.

Secretary Wilson has decided to give the farmers of the country a practical demonstration of how to make denatured alcohol.

He will establish at Washington, in one of the buildings of the department of agriculture, a model station, or plant, where farmers and others interested in the subject will be shown how to make alcohol out of the various waste products of the farm, such as decayed fruit, corn, potatoes and the like, which cannot be used for any other purpose.

The farmers have been slow to take up this matter, and Secretary Wilson wants to instruct and encourage them. The management of the corn exposition which is to be held at Omaha next fall wants Secretary Wilson to establish a station there and give demonstrations. The secretary would like to do so, but won't unless congress makes the necessary appropriation.

Jewel Flowers For Earrings.

Those who have been complaining that the trouble with so called art jewelry is that they limit themselves to selection within a range of three or four gems and will not attempt to devise novelties, fearing they may not "catch on," will have to withdraw their charges. Floral earrings have been put upon the market and may be bought to match the colors of different costumes or the flowers on the latest spring hats, says the New York Press. Forget-me-nots are made of turquoises, with a pearl or diamond in the center of the flower. Pink rosebuds are cut out of pink coral. Purple pansies and violets are imitated in amethysts. Amber does duty for buttercups. Delightful garden daisy earrings are made of mother-of-pearl, with the tips of the petals tinted pink. A leaf earring is fashioned of emeralds. Dainty little poppies are set with rubies or garnets. Certain women prefer the flower earrings fitted close to the lobes, whereas others still cling to the drop design and have fixed to the hook or screw a couple of slender gold or silver links, from which little jeweled blossoms depend.

AGED WOMAN MURDERED.

Negro Kills Wealthy Recluse in Order to Rob Her.

St. Louis, April 14.—Mrs. Beazlie E. Mullally, aged seventy years, a wealthy recluse, was found dead at her home with her throat cut from ear to ear, and a negro chore boy has confessed that he had murdered the old woman to rob her of the large sum she was supposed to carry.

Mrs. Mullally was a widow and had lived like a hermit for twenty-seven years in her old home on South Fifteenth street, despite the entreaties of her children that she follow them to a better quarter of the city.

A negro, Charles Hinchner, aged twenty-four years, was arrested as soon as it was found that he had worked for Mrs. Mullally Saturday. He confessed that he had killed the woman with a jackknife and secured $47, which he spent for a watch, rings and drink.

Both Held for Trial.

Richmond, Mo., April 14.—The preliminary hearing of Thomas McGonnigle and his sister, Mrs. Mary J. Burnett, charged with the murder of their sister-in-law, Mrs. Maggie McGonnigle, has ended. The defendants were bound over to the circuit court for trial and their bonds fixed at $5,000 each. Mrs. Maggie McGonnigle was murdered and her home set afire on Feb. 10.

Injunction Dissolved.

San Francisco, April 14.—The injunction restraining Surveyor General Kingsbury from removing certain documents in his possession to Washington, as he had been ordered to do by the federal court of the District of Columbia for use in the trial of Hyde and Benson, charged with land frauds, was dissolved by Judge Sewall on his motion and without argument.

Minister's Body Found.

New York, April 14.—The body of a man found in Hudson river has been identified as that of Rev. Dr. Charles Elmer Allison, pastor of the Day Spring Presbyterian church of Yonkers, who has been missing since January. It is not known in what manner Dr. Allison met his death.

DIAMOND DRILL BIT WAS FOUND TODAY

C. H. Burt Well Known Traveling Man Discovered it Under Depot Platform

EVIDENTLY HAD BEEN PLANTED

Thief Apparently Had Not Dared Return to Deerwood to Get the Swag

What was probably the last chapter in the Deerwood diamond drill bit case was enacted this forenoon when the missing property was found by accident. C. H. Burt, the well known traveling man who sells goods for Griggs, Cooper & Co., of St. Paul, was standing on the depot platform at Deerwood this forenoon. His attention was attracted to a certain tie in the railroad and he jumped down onto the track to examine it. As he straightened up he noticed the bit stuck in under the steps of the platform. He reached in and took it out and carried it to the local office of the Cole & McDonald Exploration Co., at Deerwood and turned it over to the man in charge.

That the bit had been planted is certain, but whether the man Ayott, who was in jail here charged with the offense was the thief and had had no opportunity to return for the swag, or whether the thief was some local party who was awaiting a time when he could safely dispose of it will probably never be known.

LEAGUE MEETING WAS ENTHUSIASTIC

Civic League Set Ball Rolling Monday Evening for Beautiful Brainerd

LAST YEAR'S WORK REVIEWED

Mayor Wise is Asked to Set Date For a Special Cleaning up Day for the city

There was a good attendance of second ward gentlemen at the Commercial rooms Monday evening at the initial meeting of the Civic league for the season. The Fifth ward was represented by only one gentleman and the Third by one. What the crowd lacked in size, however, it made up in enthusiasm.

Work Done Last Year

The meeting was called to order by President Geo. D. LaBar, who called H. F. Michael who reviewed the work done last year. He stated that there had been several things accomplished which he believed were any one of them worth the entire output of time and energy. Among the things accomplished he mentioned the beautifying of the depot grounds and railroad park and expressed the belief that the work would be extended and continued. He also spoke of the improvements in Gregory park, the increased interest taken by the householders of the city in the keeping of their premises in good shape and of other minor work done.

Attorney A. T. Larson was called upon by Mr. LaBar and spoke of the value of a neat home and surroundings as an incentive to the young people of the family to be neat and painstaking. He also spoke of the added financial value of a property where it and its neighbors' were well kept.

For Park Improvement

Alderman Farrar stated that there was between $250 and $300 on hand for the improvement of the city park and that the city council, finding that they could not make an especial park levy had added a half mill to the general levy. It was hoped that the same thing would be done again this year and thus there would soon be a sufficient fund on hand to give Brainerd a system of parks.

Should Fix Boulevards

Dr. Werner Hemstead was called upon and spoke of the added value to property on Fourth street because it had been paved and the boulevards fixed and kept neatly. He also called attention to the neglected condition of the boulevards along Kingwood and 6th streets. After some discussion it was decided to request owners of property where the curb had been set to level and seed the boulevards. It was also suggested that it might be possible to get up some sort of a contest between the two sides of the streets and thus arouse interest in the work.

To Curb Second Ward

A suggestion was made that the grades be established and the estimates prepared for the curbing of all the streets in the Second ward so that the assessments could be levied against the property next fall and the curbs be put in next summer. This would thus divide the cost of paving and curbing so that it would come in different years and while beautifying the city would not make a heavy burden on the property owners.

For Special Cleaning Day

It was moved by Henry I. Cohen that the mayor of the city be requested to appoint a cleaning-up day at which time every householder would be requested to clean up his lot and the street in front of it if the same was not already clean. The motion was adopted without a dissenting vote.

To District City

Several suggestions were made as to the best way to secure efficient work throughout all parts of the city and the consensus of opinion seemed to be that the best way was to district the city and endeavor to stimulate friendly rivalry. President LaBar spoke of a western city where the civic league had worked up such enthusiasm that there had been an organization into wards and precincts and men appointed to each and the precincts subdivided and a man placed in charge of each block.

Gathering Garbage

Attorney M. E. Ryan called the attention of the league to the lack of efficient and economical methods of gathering garbage. He believed that the city should assume the work of hauling away the tin cans, etc., if the householders would have them in proper receptacles. He also called attention to the need of trimming up the trees around the Northern Pacific depot and suggested that Mr. Gemmell be requested to take the matter up. The matter of the need of a walk in front of the Jerry Howe property at the corner of Sixth and Main streets was brought up and Alderman Farrar stated that he thought that the city council would order a walk put in there this summer.

Publicity Committee Appointed

On motion of Henry I. Cohen the president was instructed to appoint a special committee of five to take charge of the matter of publicity and to have general charge of the work of securing co-operation in the work by those not now interested. President LaBar appointed the following members of that committee: H. F. Michael, Henry I. Cohen, R. R. Wise, Rev. J. F. McLeod and H. W. Linnemann.

APPROPRIATE BOARDING CARS

Many Bums are Entering the City and Finding Habitations in Unused N. P. Cars

The police report that tramps and bums are beginning to swarm into the city this spring. They find the unoccupied boarding cars of the Northern Pacific railroad, which are standing in the shop yards here, first class quarters and the police rounded up 11 Sunday morning and sent them out of the city and also gathered in nine more this morning and sent them on their way.

TO TEST TOOL STEEL

Several Parties Were Here Monday to Make Tests of Various Brands of Tool Steel

There was a gathering of salesmen and representatives of the manufacturers of tool steel in Brainerd Monday. They were here for the purpose of making comparative tests of the various brands of tool steel for use in tools to be used on the big rapid cutting machines in the Northern Pacific shops in this city. Owing to a breakage on the big machine on which the test was to have been made it was necessary to postpone the test for about a month.

"Bijou"

The Stocktons drew a big crowd at the Bijou last night despite the counter attraction of Uncle Tom's Cabin. Their farce "The Henpecked Husband," made a great hit. They will change the bill tomorrow, Wednesday evening and again on Friday evening. The headliner of the moving pictures was "The French Spy" an intensely dramatic piece occupying a film 1500 feet long. The illustrated song was admirably adapted to Miss Mahlum's voice and she sang it beautifully, it was entitled, "Katie, Darling, I am Waiting."

"At the Unique"

There was a good crowd at the Unique last evening despite the fact that there were counter attractions. The illustrated song, "Violette," was beautiful and Miss Graham sang it well. The views of the City of Morocco, were unusually interesting, while the colored films, "The Angel of the Village" and "The Animated Snowball," were very handsome. "Won a Prize" was a comedy film which made a good hit.

A Thunderous Megaphone.

On the French coast there soon will be a lighthouse equipped with a monster mouth and a compressed air device which will enable it to shout in tones of thunder to ships on the horizon. Dr. Marage of Paris is the inventor. It will be an exact imitation of the human throat and mouth, with an air pump for lungs. Teeth, lips, jawbones and all are imitated exactly. With a mouth six feet from corner to corner, it is estimated that the artificial voice of the lighthouse will be understood from three to six miles away, according to weather conditions. Mouths of this size are to be placed beneath the lens of the new French lighthouse. As steamers come over the horizon from Africa or America and are sighted one of its mouths will turn seaward and bellow "Hello!"

FARM, HOME AND GARDEN

An agricultural paper gives the following directions regarding the care of eggs for setting:

"In general, eggs can not be set the day they are laid. Place them in a room where the temperature is fairly constant and at about 60 degrees F. Turn them carefully at least once a day. If the air is very dry, sprinkle the floor with water, or place a few pans of water in the room; otherwise there may be a rapid evaporation of moisture from the egg, leaving a big air cell in the large end of it. Eggs intended for incubation should be kept no longer than is absolutely necessary. Two weeks is about as long as it is safe to keep them, although with good care, under proper conditions, they may be kept longer. The fresher the egg the more likely it is to hatch a good and strong chick."

A Swedish horticulturist has come to New York with the object of attempting to introduce into America the Lignoberry, which is similar to our cranberry. It is one of the popular fruits of Sweden and it is thought will prove equally popular here. If he is successful in introducing it, the Swedish experimenter proposes to establish farms for its culture and factories for preparing it for market. To add a new and valuable berry to our stock and industries that will give employment to thousands is certainly an object to be desired and our horticulturists will watch with interest the outcome of the experiment.

For Park Improvement

Alderman Farrar stated that there was between $250 and $300 on hand for the improvement of the city park and that the city council, finding that they could not make an especial park levy had added a half mill to the general levy. It was hoped that the same thing would be done again this year and thus there would soon be a sufficient fund on hand to give Brainerd a system of parks.

Should Fix Boulevards

Dr. Werner Hemstead was called upon and spoke of the added value to property on Fourth street because it had been paved and the boulevards fixed and kept neatly. He also called attention to the neglected condition of the boulevards along Kingwood and 6th streets. After some discussion it was decided to request owners of property where the curb had been set to level and seed the boulevards. It was also suggested that it might be possible to get up some sort of a contest between the two sides of the streets and thus arouse interest in the work.

To Curb Second Ward

A suggestion was made that the grades be established and the estimates prepared for the curbing of all the streets in the Second ward so that the assessments could be levied against the property next fall and the curbs be put in next summer. This would thus divide the cost of paving and curbing so that it would come in different years and while beautifying the city would not make a heavy burden on the property owners.

For Special Cleaning Day

It was moved by Henry I. Cohen that the mayor of the city be requested to appoint a cleaning-up day at which time every householder would be requested to clean up his lot and the street in front of it if the same was not already clean. The motion was adopted without a dissenting vote.

To District City

Several suggestions were made as to the best way to secure efficient work throughout all parts of the city and the consensus of opinion seemed to be that the best way was to district the city and endeavor to stimulate friendly rivalry. President LaBar spoke of a western city where the civic league had worked up such enthusiasm that there had been an organization into wards and precincts and men appointed to each and the precincts subdivided and a man placed in charge of each block.

Gathering Garbage

Attorney M. E. Ryan called the attention of the league to the lack of efficient and economical methods of gathering garbage. He believed that the city should assume the work of hauling away the tin cans, etc., if the householders would have them in proper receptacles. He also called attention to the need of trimming up the trees around the Northern Pacific depot and suggested that Mr. Gemmell be requested to take the matter up. The matter of the need of a walk in front of the Jerry Howe property at the corner of Sixth and Main streets was brought up and Alderman Farrar stated that he thought that the city council would order a walk put in there this summer.

Publicity Committee Appointed

On motion of Henry I. Cohen the president was instructed to appoint a special committee of five to take charge of the matter of publicity and to have general charge of the work of securing co-operation in the work by those not now interested. President LaBar appointed the following members of that committee: H. F. Michael, Henry I. Cohen, R. R. Wise, Rev. J. F. McLeod and H. W. Linneman.

ADVERTISING CLUB

First of a Series of Discussions on Advertising to be Held at the Y. M. C. A. This Evening

Death Was on His Heels.

Jesse P. Morris of Skippers, Va. had a close call in the spring of 1906. He says: "An attack of pneumonia left me so weak and with such a fearful cough that my friends declared consumption had me, and death was at my heels. Then I was persuaded to try Dr. King's New Discovery. It helped me immediately, and after taking two and a half bottles I was a well man again. I found out that New Discovery is the best remedy for coughs and lung disease in all the world." Sold under guarantee at Dunn's drug store 50c and $1.00. Trial bottle free. ttdsw

APPROPRIATE BOARDING CARS

Many Bums are Entering the City and Finding Habitations in Unused N. P. Cars

The police report that tramps and bums are beginning to swarm into the city this spring. They find the unoccupied boarding cars of the Northern Pacific railroad, which are standing in the shop yards here, first class quarters and the police rounded up 11 Sunday morning and sent them out of the city and also gathered in nine more this morning and sent them on their way.

TO TEST TOOL STEEL

Several Parties Were Here Monday to Make Tests of Various Brands of Tool Steel

There was a gathering of salesmen and representatives of the manufacturers of tool steel in Brainerd Monday. They were here for the purpose of making comparative tests of the various brands of tool steel for use in tools to be used on the big rapid cutting machines in the Northern Pacific shops in this city. Owing to a breakage on the big machine on which the test was to have been made it was necessary to postpone the test for about a month.

"Bijou"

The Stocktons drew a big crowd at the Bijou last night despite the counter attraction of Uncle Tom's Cabin. Their farce "The Henpecked Husband," made a great hit. They will change the bill tomorrow, Wednesday evening and again on Friday evening. The headliner of the moving pictures was "The French Spy" an intensely dramatic piece occupying a film 1500 feet long. The illustrated song was admirably adapted to Miss Mahlum's voice and she sang it beautifully, it was entitled, "Katie, Darling, I am Waiting."

"At the Unique"

There was a good crowd at the Unique last evening despite the fact that there were counter attractions. The illustrated song, "Violette," was beautiful and Miss Graham sang it well. The views of the City of Morocco, were unusually interesting, while the colored films, "The Angel of the Village" and "The Animated Snowball," were very handsome. "Won a Prize" was a comedy film which made a good hit.

A Thunderous Megaphone.

On the French coast there soon will be a lighthouse equipped with a monster mouth and a compressed air device which will enable it to shout in tones of thunder to ships on the horizon. Dr. Marage of Paris is the inventor. It will be an exact imitation of the human throat and mouth, with an air pump for lungs. Teeth, lips, jawbones and all are imitated exactly. With a mouth six feet from corner to corner, it is estimated that the artificial voice of the lighthouse will be understood from three to six miles away, according to weather conditions. Mouths of this size are to be placed beneath the lens of the new French lighthouse. As steamers come over the horizon from Africa or America and are sighted one of its mouths will turn seaward and bellow "Hello!"

FARM, HOME AND GARDEN

An agricultural paper gives the following directions regarding the care of eggs for setting:

"In general, eggs can not be set the day they are laid. Place them in a room where the temperature is fairly constant and at about 60 degrees F. Turn them carefully at least once a day. If the air is very dry, sprinkle the floor with water, or place a few pans of water in the room; otherwise there may be a rapid evaporation of moisture from the egg, leaving a big air cell in the large end of it. Eggs intended for incubation should be kept no longer than is absolutely necessary. Two weeks is about as long as it is safe to keep them, although with good care, under proper conditions, they may be kept longer. The fresher the egg the more likely it is to hatch a good and strong chick."

A Swedish horticulturist has come to New York with the object of attempting to introduce into America the Lignon berry, which is similar to our cranberry. It is one of the popular fruits of Sweden and it is thought will prove equally popular here. If he is successful in introducing it, the Swedish experimenter proposes to establish farms for its culture and factories for preparing it for market. To add a new and valuable berry to our stock and industries that will give employment to thousands is certainly an object to be desired and our horticulturists will watch with interest the outcome of the experiment.

Jealousy Motive of Crime.

Albany, N. Y., April 14.—William Robinson of Old Forge, Pa., aged about twenty-seven, shot and probably fatally wounded Ellen Moore, aged twenty-four, of Scranton, Pa. Robinson was arrested. Jealousy is given as the cause of the shooting. It is said by the police that the couple have lived together here for some time.

STATE POLICE STONED.

Strike Sympathizers Attack Them at Chester, Pa.

Chester, Pa., April 14.—A strike of conductors, motormen and other employees of the Chester Traction company, followed by the importation of about 150 strike breakers and the summoning of a detachment of the state constabulary to assist the local police in preventing violence, precipitated a series of clashes between strike sympathizers and state police. The state police were stoned and moved and several officers and civilians were hurt, though none dangerously.

Loss of Sleep

EXHAUSTED NERVES.

Nature always gives ample warning of the approach of nervous collapse, if you can but read the signs. Among the earliest indications of nervous exhaustion is inability to rest and sleep. You lie awake and think, think, think but cannot quiet your brain and nerves to sleep. Opium and narcotics cannot possibly afford more than temporary relief and leave you worse off than before. Cure can only be brought about by the restoration of the nervous system by the use of

Dr. A. W. Chase's Nerve Pills

You can be positively cured of sleeplessness, headaches, and nervous dyspepsia and stop the approach of nervous prostration, paralysis or loco-motor ataxia by the use of this treatment. Be sure to use the portrait and signature of A. W. Chase, M.D., on the box, 50 cents at all dealers, or Dr. A. W. Chase Medicine Co., Buffalo, N. Y.

Mrs. C. G. Heckenlively, Angola, Ind., writes:

"I have used Dr. A. W. Chase's Nerve Pills for sleeplessness and a run down nervous system with excellent results. They give sleep in the right way, not by the opiate plan, but by their tonic and uplifting effect on the nerves."

MEMORIES OF A FAMOUS HOTEL.

Thomas Gay's Stories About the Historic Fifth Avenue.

RENDEZVOUS OF GREAT MEN.

Head Waiter at New York Hostelry Who Waited on Every President Since Lincoln Tells Interesting Incidents Witnessed During a Service of Forty-six Years.

Heartbroken because the Fifth Avenue hotel at New York, in which he spent forty-six years of his life, is to be torn down to make room for an office building, Thomas Gay, the aged head waiter, who has personally served every president from Lincoln to Roosevelt in the hostelry, left recently for Steamboat Springs, Colo., where he will go into seclusion on a little farm for the rest of his life.

During the long years he spent at the hotel Gay collected many interesting anecdotes of the great men who made it their rendezvous.

With tears in his eyes Gay bade farewell to the hotel that has sheltered more famous guests than any other hostelry in the world. Slowly he passed from one spacious room to another, and in each a train of ghosts stepped forward to meet him.

"This was Lincoln's room, here on the parlor floor," he mused. "I can see him now the first time I led him up here with his sagging black suit and inimitable smile. And this room is the one Grant always had when he was here. This was Sheridan's, this Farragut's, and here was where General McClellan's first daughter was born."

When the old waiter reached the dining room the employees, many of them white haired men, who had been his companions for twenty and thirty years, were assembled to bid him farewell. Hardly an eye was dry. Gay stepped forward silently and clasped the hand of one after the other. No one spoke. With solemn gravity the old man passed down the line. As he reached the end he said in a voice choking with emotion:

"Boys, we won't forget each other, will we? I won't forget you, and I don't believe you will me. We've been friends, some of us for forty years, but now the time has come to go. Don't forget the old house, boys. She is dearer to me almost than my wife and daughter, and—"

With a sob the waiter stopped, hesitated, then turned his back and hurried down the stairs. Later, when he was found at his home in New York by a New York Evening Mail reporter, he told some interesting stories of the Fifth Avenue hotel during the civil war.

"At the outbreak of the war in 1861," he said, "I ran away from home to enlist, but they refused me because I was too young. I lived in Cazenovia, up state, and, afraid to go home again, I came to New York. The Fifth Avenue hotel had been opened by Messrs. Stevens, Hitchcock and Darling in 1859, and I came here and asked for a job. They sent me to Mr. Stevens, and he asked me what I could do. 'Everything,' I replied, and he gave me a job as waiter. In two months I was head waiter.

"The closest call the hotel ever had was during the draft riots of 1863, just before the battle of Gettysburg. A great mob, numbering thousands, gathered on Broadway above the hotel and after firing some buildings and committing other depredations began to march toward the hotel, shouting, 'Now for the Fifth Avenue!'

"There was a big crowd in front of the hotel, and the lobby was packed with guests and loiterers. Mr. Stevens and Mr. Hitchcock had a hurried consultation and decided that if they barred the doors it would only act as an incentive to the mob. The bar was closed.

"The proprietors did not dare close it of their own accord for fear the mob would break in and demand free drinks and if they were refused would tear the hotel to pieces. So we had a big sign stuck up, 'Bar Closed by Order of the Mayor.'

"Stevens and Hitchcock were men of action and did not know what personal fear meant. When they heard that the mob was on its way they summoned all the employees, distributed rifles and pistols and stationed men on the parlor floor at the top of every stairway.

"The hot water apparatus was in full blast. Hose was run up from the engine room and the furnaces set roaring, so that we would have a good supply of scalding water to greet the rioters if necessary.

"On the top floor and roof were hundreds of loose bricks that were about to be used to build some new chimneys. 'Tom, take three men and go on the roof to tumble off these bricks when I give the command,' said Mr. Stevens quietly. We rushed up and got everything in readiness to give the rioters the reception of their lives.

"Up Broadway we could see the street black with them, marching steadily down toward the hotel. It looked as though we were in for it when I saw a little man push hurriedly across the street and enter the hotel door. It was 'Little Mac' (General George B. McClellan), who had recently been relieved from the command of the Army of the Potomac.

"Mr. Darling and General McClellan were great friends. They held a hurried conference. Meanwhile the mob was rapidly approaching. Suddenly one of the employees came running up stairs. 'General McClellan is going to check the mob!' he shouted. A minute later 'Little Mac' ran up the street. He met the mob at the Worth monument, and the leaders recognized him. 'Stop, boys!' he shouted. 'Follow me!'

"The great crowd of wild eyed men broke into a cheer. 'Hurrah for 'Little Mac' and a tiger!' they yelled. It was just what the general wanted. Seizing the opportunity, he faced about and, with the mob falling in behind, marched down Broadway to Twenty-first street, where his house was situated. He had saved the hotel.

"None of the men who were at the hotel when I came are alive now. I have buried them all—proprietors, employees and guests. I am the last. I guess I have come into personal contact with more great men than any other fellow in the states.

"I'll tell you how General Phil Sheridan got to be the only man in New York who had free access to the bar during the war. I had been at the hotel only a few months when Sheridan and General Baird, who had married old Gerrit Smith's daughter and was living at the hotel, came in one night and wanted a drink. The bar was closed, and the clerk told them so. That made Sheridan mad.

"I don't give a — if the bar is closed! I am going to have a drink!" he shouted. 'Wait a minute,' said General Baird, who knew me. 'Perhaps I can fix that all right.' He went upstairs, where I was at work on the park floor, and called me aside.

"Phil Sheridan is down below, and he has got to have a drink. What can you do for us?" he said.

"I slipped down a back stairway, opened the back bar and gave General Baird a hint that it was all right. He and Sheridan slipped in and opened a bottle of Bourbon whisky. Sheridan's favorite drink. General Baird told him I had arranged it, and he never forgot me.

"He used to say, 'Hello, you white haired boy!' whenever he saw me, and after that he was the only man in New York who could get a drink at the Fifth Avenue hotel when the bar was closed.

"I shall never forget the time King Edward, then the Prince of Wales, came to the hotel. It was in 1890, I think. He was a young man, and his staff of governors and retainers took him to the hotel and ensconced him comfortably in suits 37 and 38 on the parlor floor. They thought he was safely settled for the night, but the prince decided he would like to see a little of the city before going to bed. He rang, and I answered. He asked me if I had a ladder. I did not know what he was after, but said I had one.

"Well, bring it around to the front of the hotel in an hour, prop it up against my window and then go away," he said.

"I waited awhile, got the ladder, set it in place and went around the corner so that I could see what happened. In a little while three or four well known men gathered about it. Then the window opened, and down came the prince fully dressed. It was midnight then, and all his governors were fast asleep. The prince went out with his friends, saw the city and strolled back up the ladder about daylight. And the governors were never the wiser.

"John T. Raymond, the actor, spent a good part of his time at the Fifth Avenue. He was great for games of chance and would go around all day with a twenty dollar gold piece trying to get people to match with him. He would sit and match money all night if he could find any one to do it with him.

"Most people don't know that General Sherman attended a ball of the hotel employees at Irving hall, down near the Academy of Music. Sherman was at the hotel with Colonel Hooker of Vermont. One day at dinner I handed the general several tickets to our ball. He smiled and didn't say anything. I did not think he would come, of course. While the ball was in progress the door opened, and there stood Sherman and Hooker. We led them to a box, and before they left they had bought champagne for every one in the hall.

"The day after Fort Sumter was fired on the proprietors of the hotel offered to pay any one $50,000 who would take it off their hands for one year. Nobody would do it, and it was well for the owners that they wouldn't, for in that year they made a net profit of $150,000.

"Lincoln used to come to the hotel occasionally. I showed him his room the first time. After that I rarely saw him. He occupied rooms 82 and 83. Mrs. Lincoln was there for a long time. It was rumored that her sympathies were with the south, and the president did not like to come too often.

"He always came at night, and hardly any one ever knew when he was here. The rooms he used to have have been occupied lately by Mrs. Williams, daughter of George Law.

"General Winfield Scott was at the hotel when I was there. He had suit 12 and 13 on the first floor. He was a gruff old reclus and would just as soon fire a glass at you as think.

"When General Grant was in the city he made his headquarters at the Fifth Avenue. Whenever there was a dinner at which he was a guest he used to come to me and ask to have the waiter serve him with a plain dinner, which meant corn beef and cabbage, his favorite dish.

"He always insisted on having this fare while the other guests were eating capons, truffles and other fancy dishes. I never knew him to eat rich food, and I don't think I ever saw him without a cigar, except at mealtime.

"Those old days have passed. I'm going out west on a little farm I have bought with my savings, and my wife is coming to join me soon. I am going today because I do not want to see them begin to tear down the old hotel."

BEST PLACE TO LIVE.

Tribute Paid by Dr. James R. Day to America.

PREFERS EARTH TO HEAVEN.

Syracuse University Chancellor Tells Y. M. C. A. Members He Doesn't Yearn For Mansion In the Sky—Defends Wealthy, but Deplores Squandering of Their Fortunes.

Rev. Dr. James R. Day, chancellor of Syracuse university, who spoke to a crowded house the other afternoon at the Harlem branch of the Young Men's Christian association, in West One Hundred and Twenty-fifth street, New York, scouted the idea that the United States was in a state bordering on commercial and industrial stagnation. He contended that, after all, this is a good world and altogether well worth living in.

"Wouldn't you rather live here than in heaven?" asked the chancellor. "I would, but I'd like to go to heaven when I can't be here. In fact, I think I'd be rather discounted in heaven—till I got adjusted. You can get anything you want here. You can live under forty odd governments, meet all the nations of the world, eat all the fruits of the world and get any kind of climate that you choose. So America is the best place to live. But I think when a man can't stay here any longer he ought to steer for heaven.

"For my part, I've never been very much fascinated with the idea of corner lots and mansions in the skies and songs and harps and such things. I like a place because it's busy, and the more business there is the better I like it. Give me lots of work and lots of people to oppose me, and then I'm happy.

"I hope you young men—and old men, too—all have work. If you haven't you will have soon. This nation is too big to be ruined, too big to stop long. The business of the country isn't going to stagnate or wither. It is going on. There's too much wealth in the interior, too much property on the surface, too much harvest on its broad acres, too many factories, too much money that's got to be invested to be safe, for us to halt very long.

"You've heard that sublime, stupid nonsense about half a dozen men putting the world in their pockets and not letting anybody else get any. Why, you may be one of those half dozen some day. These men aren't going to live forever. If they had Methuselah's prospects of life it might be a serious matter. Men get rich, and then they get fat and get dyspepsia and die. The Lord takes care of that. Most of them are fools before they die and leave their millions to their sons and daughters instead of to Syracuse university. And most of the sons are fools too. They spend the money for autos and yachts and great establishments, and by and by you all get it back.

"The daughters distribute wealth too. They give some of it to those counts and no accounts the papers are full of. Most of it goes abroad, but it comes back again. Many of the daughters of the rich sell themselves and give a bonus. We have a market here in this country for rich girls, just as much a market as they have in Constantinople. To this market go all the ragged, tattered royalty that nobody has any use for abroad. It is a spectacle for men and angels. You can't be personal about such things, but you know what I mean, and you can put it down that most of those sales aren't turning out very well. And that's a good thing.

"Yes, the material outlook is very encouraging. And we won't blame the prosperous, because we all want to be prosperous ourselves. Let us all be without that dangerous antagonism to wealth that flows out of sources of malignity and ignorance.

"Do you think there's any danger of anybody's being too big? Not a bit of it. Of course there are thieves in all classes of society—thieves both big and little. But there aren't as many today as there were yesterday, and they will be still fewer tomorrow. They are fast disappearing. It's the gospel of Christ, not legislation, that's doing away with them.

"Those congressmen making salutes of us? No; not a bit of it. They're not in the saint making business. You don't need laws to make you good. How many of you know what the ordinances of the city of New York are? There are a great many of them, and you walk the streets every day and never think of them. All you need to keep out of trouble is a spirit of righteousness. You have that within you that keeps you from violating the law.

"I came here to talk ten minutes. Just outside the door I met a pious Methodist who offered to bet me I couldn't do it. It being Sunday, I didn't take the bet, and I'm glad, for I would have lost. I have talked more than ten minutes."

The New Crozier Bullet.

The new rifle bullet developed by Brigadier General William Crozier, chief of ordnance, is said to be one of the most important recent achievements of that department. The head of the bullet has been modified and a powder produced which gives the rifle an accurate life of some 4,500 rounds. At the outset of the experiments the accuracy of the rifle was destroyed after but 1,000 rounds.

Value of Liquid Air in Mines.

Liquid air was used as an explosive in the building of the Simplon tunnel, and more recently it has been found of good use in English coal mines.

IN LAND FRAUD TRIAL.

Attorneys for the Defendants Object to Testimony.

Washington, April 14.—The trial of Frederick A. Hyde, John A. Benson, Henry P. Dimond and Joost Schneider, who are charged with a conspiracy to defraud the government out of valuable lands, is punctuated with numerous objections from the attorneys for the defendants. The principal objection made to testimony thus far has been that the alleged illegal acts in regard to which witnesses have testified occurred more than three years prior to the finding of the indictment in 1901 and are therefore barred by the statute of limitations.

While United States District Attorney Baker has secured the admission of the evidence thus far, a hard legal battle is expected when the final arguments will be heard on the motion to strike out all evidence of this character.

Body of Missing Child Found.

Rosalie, Neb., April 14.—The body of Lillie Olson, the child who disappeared mysteriously from the home of her parents near here early in December of last year, was found by two little girls who were picking flowers on the prairie. The remains were in a ravine two miles and a half from the Olson home plainly in view. The body was badly decomposed, but identification was made easy from the clothing. There was nothing to indicate that the little girl met death from other than natural causes, supposedly as the result of hunger and exposure.

Probably Fatally Injured.

Philadelphia, April 14.—William Renwick, popularly known as "Scotty," the groundskeeper at the University of Pennsylvania, was struck on the head by a 16-pound hammer at Franklin field and probably fatally injured. Daniel F. Luby of Peabody, Mass., threw the hammer down the field toward "Scotty," who either did not see the throw or lost sight of the weight in the sun.

COMMON SENSE

Leads most intelligent people to use only medicines of known composition. Therefore it is that Dr. Pierce's medicines, the makers of which print every ingredient entering into them upon the bottle wrappers and attest its correctness under oath, are daily growing in favor. The composition of Dr. Pierce's medicines is open to everybody. Dr. Pierce being desirous of having the search light of investigation turned fully upon his formulae, being confident that the better the composition of these medicines is known the more will their great curative merit be recognized. Being wholly made of the active medicinal principles extracted from native forest roots, by exact processes original with Dr. Pierce, and without the use of a drop of alcohol, triple-refined and chemically pure glycerine being used instead in extracting and preserving the curative virtues residing in the roots employed, these medicines are entirely free from the objection of doing harm by creating an appetite for either alcoholic beverages or habit-forming drugs. Examine the formula on their bottle wrappers—the same as sworn to by Dr. Pierce, and you will find that his "Golden Medical Discovery," the great blood-purifier, stomach tonic and bowel regulator—the medicine which, while not recommended to cure consumption in its advanced stages (no medicine will do that) yet does cure all those catarrhal conditions of head and throat, weak stomach, torpid liver and bronchial troubles, weak lungs and hang-on-coughs, which, if neglected or badly treated lead up to and finally terminate in consumption. Take the "Golden Medical Discovery" in time and it is not likely to disappoint you if only you give it a thorough and fair trial. Don't expect miracles. It won't do supernatural things. You must exercise your patience and persevere in its use for a reasonable length of time to get its full benefits. The ingredients of which Dr. Pierce's medicines are composed have the unqualified endorsement of scores of medical leaders—better than any amount of lay, or non-professional, testimonials. They are not given away to be experimented with but are sold by all dealers in medicines at reasonable prices.

Loss of Sleep

EXHAUSTED NERVES.

Nature always gives ample warning of the approach of nervous collapse, if you can but read the signs. Among the earliest indications of nervous exhaustion is inability to rest and sleep. You lie awake and think, think, but cannot quiet your brain and nerves to sleep. Opium and narcotics cannot possibly afford more than temporary relief and leave you worse off than before. Cure can only be brought about by the restoration of the nervous system by the use of

Dr. A. W. Chase's Nerve Pills

You can be positively cured of sleeplessness, headaches, and nervous dyspepsia and stop the approach of nervous prostration, paralysis or loco-motor ataxia by the use of this treatment. Be sure to see the portrait and signature of A. W. Chase, M. D., on the box, 50 cents at all dealers, or Dr. A. W. Chase Medicine Co., Buffalo, N. Y.

Mrs. C. G. Heckenlied, Angola, Ind., states:

"I have used Dr. A. W. Chase's Nerve Pills for sleeplessness and a run down nervous system with excellent results. They give sleep in the right way, not by the opiate plan, but by their tonic and upbuilding effect on the nerves."

MEMORIES OF A FAMOUS HOTEL.

Thomas Gay's Stories About the Historic Fifth Avenue.

RENDEZVOUS OF GREAT MEN.

Head Waiter at New York Hostelry Who Waited on Every President Since Lincoln Tells Interesting Incidents Witnessed During a Service of Forty-six Years.

Heartbroken because the Fifth Avenue hotel at New York, in which he spent forty-six years of his life, is to be torn down to make room for an office building, Thomas Gay, the aged head waiter, who has personally served every president from Lincoln to Roosevelt in the hostelry, left recently for Steamboat Springs, Colo., where he will go into seclusion on a little farm for the rest of his life.

During the long years he spent at the hotel Gay collected many interesting anecdotes of the great men who made it their rendezvous.

With tears in his eyes Gay bade farewell to the hotel that has sheltered more famous guests than any other hostelry in the world. Slowly he passed from one spacious room to another, and in each a train of ghosts stepped forward to meet him.

"This was Lincoln's room, here on the parlor floor," he mused. "I can see him now the first time I led him up here with his sagging black suit and inimitable smile. And this room is the one Grant always had when he was here. This was Sheridan's, this Farragut's, and here was where General McClellan's first daughter was born."

When the old waiter reached the dining room the employees, many of them white haired men, who had been his companions for twenty and thirty years, were assembled to bid him farewell. Hardly an eye was dry. Gay stepped forward silently and clasped the hand of one after the other. No one spoke. With solemn gravity the old man passed down the line. As he reached the end he said in a voice choking with emotion:

"Boys, we won't forget each other, will we? I won't forget you, and I don't believe you will me. We've been friends, some of us for forty years, but now the time has come to go. Don't forget the old house, boys. She is dearer to me almost than my wife and daughter, and—"

With a sob the waiter stopped, hesitated, then turned his back and hurried down the stairs. Later, when he was found at his home in New York by a New York Evening Mail reporter, he told some interesting stories of the Fifth Avenue hotel during the civil war.

"At the outbreak of the war in 1861," he said, "I ran away from home to enlist, but they refused me because I was too young. I lived in Cazenovia, up state, and, afraid to go home again, I came to New York. The Fifth Avenue hotel had been opened by Messrs. Stevens, Hitchcock and Darling in 1859, and I came here and asked for a job. They sent me to Mr. Stevens, and he asked me what I could do. 'Everything,' I replied, and he gave me a job as waiter. In two months I was head waiter."

"The closest call the hotel ever had was during the draft riots of 1863, just before the battle of Gettysburg. A great mob, numbering thousands, gathered on Broadway above the hotel and after firing some buildings and committing other depredations began to march toward the hotel, shouting, 'Now for the Fifth Avenue!'"

"There was a big crowd in front of the hotel, and the lobby was packed with guests and loiterers. Mr. Stevens and Mr. Hitchcock had a hurried consultation and decided that if they barred the doors it would only act as an incentive to the mob. The bar was closed."

"The proprietors did not dare close it of their own accord for fear the mob would break in and demand free drinks and if they were refused would tear the hotel to pieces. So we had a big sign stuck up, 'Bar Closed by Order of the Mayor.'"

"Stevens and Hitchcock were men of action and did not know what personal fear meant. When they heard that the mob was on its way they summoned all the employees, distributed rifles and pistols and stationed men on the parlor floor at the top of every stairway."

"The hot water apparatus was in full blast. Hose was run up from the engine room and the furnaces set roaring, so that we would have a good supply of scalding water to greet the rioters if necessary."

"On the top floor and roof were hundreds of loose bricks that were about to be used to build some new chimneys. 'Tom, take three men and go on the roof to tumble off these bricks when I give the command,' said Mr. Stevens quietly. We rushed up and got everything in readiness to give the rioters the reception of their lives."

"Up Broadway we could see the street black with them, marching steadily down toward the hotel. It looked as though we were in for it when I saw a little man push hurriedly across the street and enter the hotel door. It was 'Little Mac' (General George B. McClellan), who had recently been relieved from the command of the Army of the Potomac."

"Mr. Darling and General McClellan were great friends. They held a hurried conference. Meanwhile the mob was rapidly approaching. Suddenly one of the employees came running upstairs. 'General McClellan is going to check the mob!' he shouted. A minute later 'Little Mac' ran up the street. He met the mob at the Worth monument, and the leaders recognized him. 'Stop, boys!' he shouted. 'Follow me!'"

"The great crowd of wild eyed men broke into a cheer. 'Hurrah for 'Little Mac' and a tiger!' they yelled. It was just what the general wanted. Seizing the opportunity, he faced about and, with the mob falling in behind, marched down Broadway to Twenty-first street, where his house was situated. He had saved the hotel."

"None of the men who were at the hotel when I came are alive now. I have buried them all—proprietors, employees and guests. I am the last. I guess I have come into personal contact with more great men than any other fellow in the states."

"I'll tell you how General Phil Sheridan got to be the only man in New York who had free access to the bar during the war. I had been at the hotel only a few months when Sheridan and General Baird, who had married old Gerrit Smith's daughter and was living at the hotel, came in one night and wanted a drink. The bar was closed, and the clerk told them so. That made Sheridan mad."

"I don't give a — if the bar is closed! I am going to have a drink!" he shouted. 'Wait a minute,' said General Baird, who knew me. 'Perhaps I can fix that all right.' He went upstairs, where I was at work on the park floor, and called me aside."

"Phil Sheridan is down below, and he has got to have a drink. What can you do for us?" he said. "I slipped down a back stairway, opened the back bar and gave General Baird a hint that it was all right. He and Sheridan slipped in and opened a bottle of Bourbon whiskey, Sheridan's favorite drink. General Baird told him I had arranged it, and he never forgot me."

"He used to say, 'Hello, you white haired boy!' whenever he saw me, and after that he was the only man in New York who could get a drink at the Fifth Avenue hotel when the bar was closed."

"I shall never forget the time King Edward, then the Prince of Wales, came to the hotel. It was in 1890, I think. He was a young man, and his staff of governors and retainers took him to the hotel and ensconced him comfortably in suits 37 and 38 on the parlor floor. They thought he was safely settled for the night, but the prince decided he would like to see a little of the city before going to bed. He rang, and I answered. He asked me if I had a ladder. I did not know what he was after, but said I had one. 'Well, bring it around to the front of the hotel in an hour, prop it up against my window and then go away,' he said."

"I waited awhile, got the ladder, set it in place and went around the corner so that I could see what happened. In a little while three or four well known men gathered about it. Then the window opened, and down came the prince fully dressed. It was midnight then, and all his governors were fast asleep. The prince went out with his friends, saw the city and strolled back up the ladder about daylight. And the governors were never the wiser."

"John T. Raymond, the actor, spent a good part of his time at the Fifth Avenue. He was great for games of chance and would go around all day with a twenty dollar gold piece trying to get people to match with him. He would sit and match money all night if he could find any one to do it with him."

"Most people don't know that General Sherman attended a ball of the hotel employees at Irving hall, down near the Academy of Music. Sherman was at the hotel with Colonel Hooker of Vermont. One day at dinner I handed the general several tickets to our ball. He smiled and didn't say anything. I did not think he would come, of course. While the ball was in progress the door opened, and there stood Sherman and Hooker. We led them to a box, and before they left they had bought champagne for every one in the hall."

"The day after Fort Sumter was fired on the proprietors of the hotel offered to pay any one $50,000 who would take it off their hands for one year. Nobody would do it, and it was well for the owners that they wouldn't, for in that year they made a net profit of $150,000."

"Lincoln used to come to the hotel occasionally. I showed him his room the first time. After that I rarely saw him. He occupied rooms 82 and 83. Mrs. Lincoln was there for a long time. It was rumored that her sympathies were with the south, and the president did not like to come too often."

"He always came at night, and hardly any one ever knew when he was here. The rooms he used to have been occupied lately by Mrs. Williams, daughter of George Law."

"General Winfield Scott was at the hotel when I was there. He had suit 12 and 13 on the first floor. He was a gruff old reclusive and would just as soon fire a glass at you as think."

"When General Grant was in the city he made his headquarters at the Fifth Avenue. Whenever there was a dinner at which he was a guest he used to come to me and ask to have the waiter serve him with a plain dinner, which meant corn beef and cabbage, his favorite dish."

"He always insisted on having this fare while the other guests were eating capons, truffles and other fancy dishes. I never knew him to eat rich food, and I don't think I ever saw him without a cigar, except at mealtime."

"Those old days have passed. I'm going out west on a little farm I have bought with my savings, and my wife is coming to join me soon. I am going today because I do not want to see them begin to tear down the old hotel."

BEST PLACE TO LIVE.

Tribute Paid by Dr. James R. Day to America.

PREFERS EARTH TO HEAVEN.

Syracuse University Chancellor Tells Y. M. C. A. Members He Doesn't Yearn For Mansion in the Sky—Defends Wealthy, but Deplores Squandering of Their Fortunes.

Rev. Dr. James R. Day, chancellor of Syracuse university, who spoke to a crowded house the other afternoon at the Harlem branch of the Young Men's Christian association, in West One Hundred and Twenty-fifth street, New York, scouted the idea that the United States was in a state bordering on commercial and industrial stagnation. He contended that, after all, this is a good world and altogether well worth living in.

"Wouldn't you rather live here than in heaven?" asked the chancellor. "I would, but I'd like to go to heaven when I can't be here. In fact, I think I'd be rather discounted in heaven—till I got adjusted. You can get anything you want here. You can live under forty odd governments, meet all the nations of the world, eat all the fruits of the world and get any kind of climate that you choose. So America is the best place to live. But I think when a man can't stay here any longer he ought to steer for heaven."

"For my part, I've never been very much fascinated with the idea of corner lots and mansions in the skies and songs and harps and such things. I like a place because it's busy, and the more business there is the better I like it. Give me lots of work and lots of people to oppose me, and then I'm happy."

"I hope you young men—and old men, too—all have work. If you haven't you will have soon. This nation is too big to be ruined, too big to stop long. The business of the country isn't going to stagnate or wither. It is going on. There's too much wealth in the interior, too much property on the surface, too much harvest on its broad acres, too many factories, too much money that's got to be invested to be safe, for us to halt very long."

"You've heard that sublime, stupid nonsense about half a dozen men putting the world in their pockets and not letting anybody else get any. Why, you may be one of those half dozen some day. These men aren't going to live forever. If they had Methuselah's prospects of life it might be a serious matter. Men get rich, and then they get fat and get dyspepsia and die. The Lord takes care of that. Most of them are fools before they die and leave their millions to their sons and daughters instead of to Syracuse university. And most of the sons are fools too. They spend the money for autos and yachts and great establishments, and by and by you all get it back."

"The daughters distribute wealth too. They give some of it to those counts and no accounts the papers are full of. Most of it goes abroad, but it comes back again. Many of the daughters of the rich sell themselves and give a bonus. We have a market here in this country for rich girls, just as much a market as they have in Constantinople. To this market go all the ragged, tattered royalty that nobody has any use for abroad. It is a spectacle for men and angels. You can't be personal about such things, but you know what I mean, and you can put it down that most of those sales aren't turning out very well. And that's a good thing."

"Yes, the material outlook is very encouraging. And we won't blame the prosperous, because we all want to be prosperous ourselves. Let us all be without that dangerous antagonism to wealth that flows out of sources of malignity and ignorance."

"Do you think there's any danger of anybody's being too big? Not a bit of it. Of course there are thieves in all classes of society—thieves both big and little. But there aren't as many today as there were yesterday, and they will be still fewer tomorrow. They are fast disappearing. It's the gospel of Christ, not legislation, that's doing away with them."

"Those congressmen making salutes of us? No; not a bit of it. They're not in the saint making business. You don't need laws to make you good. How many of you know what the ordinances of the city of New York are? There are a great many of them, and you walk the streets every day and never think of them. All you need to keep out of trouble is a spirit of righteousness. You have that within you that keeps you from violating the law."

"I came here to talk ten minutes. Just outside the door I met a pious Methodist who offered to bet me I couldn't do it. It being Sunday, I didn't take the bet, and I'm glad, for I would have lost. I have talked more than ten minutes."

The New Crozier Bullet.

The new rifle bullet developed by Brigadier General William Crozier, chief of ordnance, is said to be one of the most important recent achievements of that department. The head of the bullet has been modified and a powder produced which gives the rifle an accurate life of some 4,500 rounds. At the outset of the experiments the accuracy of the rifle was destroyed after but 1,000 rounds.

Value of Liquid Air in Mines.

Liquid air was used as an explosive in the building of the Simpson tunnel, and more recently it has been found of good use in English coal mines.

Dr. Pierce, being desirous of having the search light of investigation turned fully upon his formulae, being confident that the better the composition of these medicines is known the more will their curative merits be recognized. Being wholly made of the active medicinal principles extracted from native forest roots, by exact processes original with Dr. Pierce, and without the use of a drop of alcohol, triple-refined and chemically pure glycerine being used instead in extracting and preserving the curative virtues residing in the roots employed, these medicines are entirely free from the objection of doing harm by creating an appetite for either alcoholic beverages or habit-forming drugs. Examine the formula on their bottle wrappers—the same as sworn to by Dr. Pierce, and you will find that his "Golden Medical Discovery," the great blood-purifier, stomach tonic and bowel regulator—the medicine which, while not recommended to cure consumption in its advanced stages (no medicine will do that) yet does cure all those catarrhal conditions of head and throat, weak stomach, torpid liver and bronchial troubles, weak lungs and hang-on-coughs, which, if neglected or badly treated lead up to and finally terminate in consumption.

Take the "Golden Medical Discovery" in time and it is not likely to disappoint you if you only give it a thorough and fair trial. Don't expect miracles. It won't do supernatural things. You must exercise your patience and persevere in its use for a reasonable length of time to get its full benefits. The ingredients of which Dr. Pierce's medicines are composed have the unqualified endorsement of scores of medical leaders—better than any amount of lay, or non-professional, testimonials. They are not given away to be experimented with but are sold by all dealers in medicines at reasonable prices.
